But in all these things we are
More Than Conquerors
through Him who loved us.

For I am convinced that neither death, nor life,
nor principalities, nor powers,
nor things present, nor things to come,
nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature . . .

Camp Teams

1. Kim Manes, Tracey Diaz, Becky Lovelady
2. Scotti Johannes, Kelly Park, Dwight Bradshaw
3. Todd Manes, Justin Moxley, Phil Alsapaw

Camp is fun . . . sometimes. Nine students were selected to represent MCC's 1988 Summer Camp Teams (listed above). Each team travelled to nine different camps from Illinois to Arizona via MCC vans. Besides Scotti Johannes hitting a cow at 50 m.p.h., and Tracey Diaz scratching up the van a little, all safely arrived to their assigned destinations.

The camp teams led campers in singing, recreation, skits, Bible study, and whatever else needed to be done to complete a camper's day. Flexibility is definitely a prerequisite for the job. Becky Lovelady humbly reports, "My family groups could whip out a major dramatic production in five minutes if they needed to."

Recruiting is secondary at camp. The main priority for the teams is to encourage campers to strengthen their personal walk with Christ. By being a part of a camper's faith, camp becomes well worth it. The hard efforts and long hours are forgotten when the rewards return tenfold.

The work schedule in Puerto Rico kept the missionaries hopping. The missions team performed a variety of tasks that ranged from calling, to teaching, to painting a church (and more). The team did, however, have a few recreational opportunities. Some days they would go to the beach, and other days they might go to the mountains or the rain forest. The trip really opened the students' eyes to the presence of Christ in other cultures. Their experience in Puerto Rico will continue to have a strong influence on each of the team members' ministries.

MCC Students Anticipate A Year Of Conquering As They Participate In Orientation And Convocation

Doug, your epiglottis is showing.

"How do you spell that again?" STUCO president, Kim Myers, asks with disbelief.

There's a charm for those going through the enrollment process.

"I would like you all to meet a young lady who will not be single at the end of the year," Tim Snell says of Diana Plotner.

Orientation . . . Such great memories! The freshmen were waterbombed, budding talent was first seen in the talent show, and the students womped on the faculty in softball. Still, orientation focused on Christ. Small group Bible studies and corporate worship provided students with direction for the coming year.

◆ As a dog returns to his vomit

"Mammas, don't let your babies grow up to be cowboys," sings country star Billie Newport.

◆ Peer pressure! Peer pressure! Orientation confronts students with the realities of college life, and Dr. Glenn has no trouble with participating in one of these realities.

◆ President Cable and Kirk Kasson "have a ball" at the orientation talent show.

SPRINGDALE COLLEGE: An Overseas Education For MCC Students

Manhattan Christian College and Springdale College of Birmingham, England, have developed a program to offer American and British students the opportunity to receive a cross-cultural educational experience. Two MCC students, Harvey Friesen, senior in Bible Ministries; and Beckie Sack, sophomore in Christian Education/Secondary Education, took advantage of this opportunity to go overseas. They attended classes for the first half the semester, then had the opportunity to travel throughout Europe to earn extra credits during the remaining term. The tie with Springdale was strengthened when former MCC professors Donn and Joan Leach joined the college family overseas to teach.

Springdale College is made up of a student body which is half British and half American. Students in the exchange program are able to attend Springdale College and the two other Selly Oak colleges associated with the University of Birmingham. Referring to her classes, Beckie Sack says, "It takes a lot of work, but I've never learned so much and been so challenged."

C. Robert Wetzel, President of Springdale College, says, "The primary reason American students choose to attend Springdale is that it is one of the most inexpensive ways to go abroad. It is an incredible opportunity."

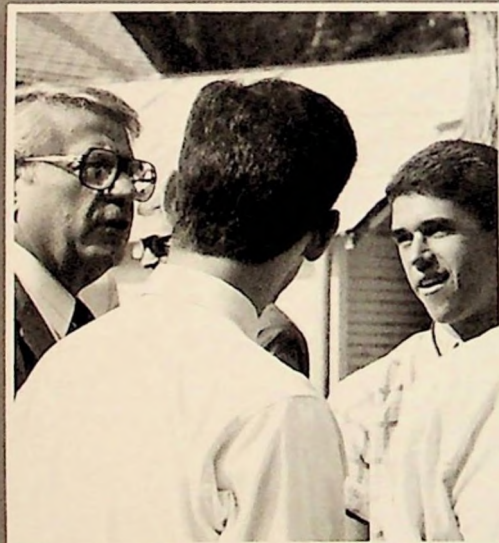

◆ During his semester abroad, Harvey Friesen did demographic work for CMF, surveying cities for future churches. He finished the semester traveling throughout England, Italy, Austria and Germany, then returned home for graduation.

◆ Here is Beckie on one of her many weekend trips. She and Harvey were able to tour London and Great Britain with other students, earning credits in humanities.

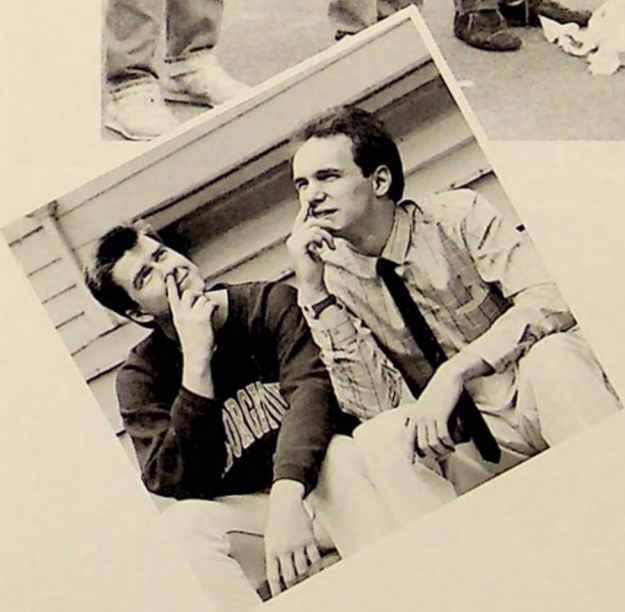

Nine MCC upperclassmen were chosen for Who's Who Among American College Students. The following were selected: Rick Grover, Genae Willich, Kim Myers, Davinna Beale, Jerry Patterson, Tara Warren, Crystal Moxley, Tim Snell, and Todd Manes.

The faculty, staff, and administration at MCC are far from distant in their relationship to the students. Unlike many professors of other colleges, they are approachable, and they choose to interact with their students in a variety of ways. Not only do they participate in small groups in chapel, but many also participate in Bible studies and discipleship groups around campus. A good number even find time to participate with the students in the intramural programs and challenges made by the athletic teams. The professors willingly open their homes for various occasions, and do their best to help students who may need special attention. It is this winningness to become involved in the students' lives that makes this college the close-knit family that it is.

PLANTED FIRM

Blessed is the man who does not walk in the counsel of the wicked or stand in the way of sinners or sit in the seat of mockers. But his delight is in the law of the Lord and on his law he meditates day and night. He is like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in season and whose leaf does not wither. Whatever he does prospers. Not so the wicked! They are like chaff that the wind blows away. Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the assembly of the righteous. For the Lord watches over the way of the righteous, but the way of the wicked will perish.

—Psalm I

◆During a senior chapel, Rick Grover leads in a few songs of praise.

Spiritual Life

Coming to Bible college doesn't bring about automatic spiritual growth as one might think. That is why there are many activities on campus that are intended to stimulate spiritual growth. Many of these are organized by the Student Spiritual Life Committee. The purpose of the committee is to promote and encourage student spiritual life. This group is also involved in the Religious Life Committee which plans chapel services. They plan activities based on suggestions brought to the group by students in order to improve student life with the following activities: concerts of prayer, discipleship, informational meeting, weekly prayer meetings, small discussion groups during chapel, a love party on Valentine's day; and with several special chapel events.

◆ Tracey Diaz and Jenette Rockey make a joyful noise.

We Came, We Saw, We Conquered

When the students returned to school last fall, they returned to a dark and unattractive chapel. In an effort to brighten up the chapel area, Jolene Rupe and Dan Hall proposed a plan which would involve the students in donating time and money to renovate the room. After new carpet, paint, window blinds, and oiled pews were in place, the "new" chapel was done. What a Difference!

◆ There are no cries of regret as Jim Steelman heaves the old carpet out the chapel door.

◆ Dan Hall, Steve Isom, and Jeff Setzer work together to dig up the old, rotting carpet.

◆ Doug Fletcher climbs the ladder to put yet another coat of paint over the old mustard yellow.

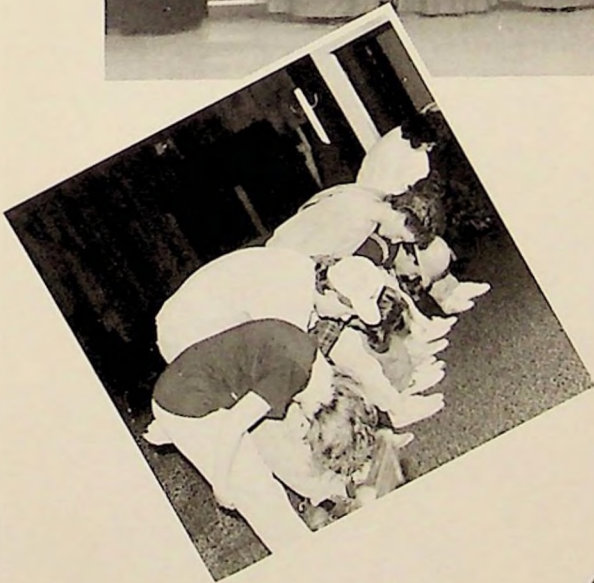

◆ Seeking to preserve the wood finish in the chapel, Mindy Arnold and Natalie McVay polish with "Old English."

◆ As a student volunteer, Stan Dirks works hard sweeping up to prepare for the laying of the new carpet.

◆ Working as a team, Gary Brown and Jeff Setzer accomplish the final phase — the spray-painting of the radiators.

Triumphant & Sound 2:

Triumphant sound (a.k.a. "T.S.") is a musical ministry group that is in it's 13th year at MCC. This year T.S. was made up of Kirk Kasson, Blake LaMunyon, Kevin Kelly, Dwight Bradshaw, Jeff Setzer, Paula Voss, Anette Setzer, Kim Manes, and Kelly Park. The group traveled to churches in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, and Arizona. Team work and lots of practice are what made each performance better than the last.

Hours of faithful practice make T.S. the select group that it is. The scholarship each member receives is well-earned indeed!

T.S. takes their message to all of Manhattan by performing in the Town Center Mall. (far right)

Apple Corps teams give students practical experience by giving them an opportunity to reach out and minister to churches. Besides those pictured, a fourth group, "... And More" met for the fall semester. This drama team was composed of: Val Bracken-Dykes, Katherine Roush, Craig Ross, Kelley Hall, John Souza, Rene' Goodballot, Matt Souder, Brian Virgil, Rachelle Winterrowd, Tabatha Garman, and Calana Needham.

Cutting Edge

For the Word of God is living and active ... Cutting Edge used Hebrews 4:12 as their theme verse for the '88-'89 school year. This apple corps group was able to continue last year's tradition through the aid of director, Genae Willich. They desired to emphasize the power of the Word in peoples' lives, and, to help further this message, Genae wrote a song. This year the group added instruments — drums, keyboard, and bass guitar — in order to produce a more unique, upbeat sound. It ministered to churches in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Indiana.

✦ With faces aglow, Cutting Edge brings a message of praise to those attending the alumni homecoming banquet.

✦ Genae Willich, director, uses her musical expertise to guide the group during practice.

✦ The men who provide the group with the essentials for a contemporary, upbeat sound — Harold Pittman and Mike Victory. (Genae also accompanied on the synthesizer)

✦ Calana Needham directs her attention toward fellow-member, Kevin Diaz, as he "solos."

ALUMNI RETURN TO MCC

HOMECOMING — an opportunity to show loyalty to a school, catch up on friendships and relive the past. On October 13-15 MCC alumni were invited to visit the campus to study church growth and work with the "Invest in the Vision" campaign. The main speaker was Robert Orr of Church Growth Inc.

"BIND US TOGETHER WITH LOVE"

Woman's World

1989

◆ These women portray different ways of expressing a "binding love".

◆ This year's Woman's World's scholarships went to Tara Warren (junior) and Cathy Keller (freshman).

◆ Penny Faust was the main speaker of the event. She spoke on the theme, "Bind us Together With Love," in the main sessions. There were also small workshops dealing with "love" taught by MCC professors, MCC women, and other featured women.

The women at Woman's World were provided with various forms of entertainment. Among them was a theater presentation by New Creation at the mall (after hours). Also featured was a mime play involving RubyAnn "Charity" Poulson and her conscience, Marcy Cassel. Through workshops, main sessions, entertainment, and interpersonalizing with one another, the women experienced two days that bound them together in love.

◆ Members of the concert committee are: Matt Balocca, James Christian, Calana Needham, Natalie McVay, Jeff Kraft, Blake LaMunyon, Hal Hooper, Paul Hill, and Grant Hardesty. Thanks to all of you for the work and time put in to bring us these great concerts!

The performers were Morgan Cryar, Phil Keaggy, Randy Stonehill, Rick Cua, The Change, Sideshow, and Watermark. The songs were full of praise as various styles of talents were represented for the semester. The concert committee worked hard to provide a full schedule for the students, as well as for Manhattan.

The Fall semester of 1988 started off with The Change, a group of MCC men coming together as an Apple Corp group. The 5-member band performed for Junior High Boot Camp and the SAC Christmas party, as well as for various lock-ins and youth rallies for the school. They have been together for about two years.

Morgan Cryar and Sideshow performed for Fall Festival of Faith. Sideshow, a local band from Wichita, opened for Cryar who sang selections from his albums "Keep No Secrets" and "Fuel for the Fire." The concert was held at the city auditorium and was well-attended.

Rick Cua joined in two weeks later in a solo performance at Chameleon's. The audience consisted of groups from all over Kansas who came for the music and fellowship.

Watermark, a group from Texas, ended the semester in a chapel performance. MCC was fortunate to be able to enjoy each concert and to be a part of the ministry through music.

◆ Working on their craft, this powerful twosome rocks MCC and the rest of Manhattan with music that touches the soul.

◆ Help with a friendly smile ... Natalie McVay and Paula Ratliff help with shirt selling at the Morgan Cryar concert.

◆ The band that wants to see a "Change": Jeff Kraft, Blake LaMunyon, Paul Hill, Hal Hooper, and Kevin Kelly.

Parents' Weekend

One of the MCC students' favorite weekends of the Spring Semester is Parents' Weekend. It is a time when the students can let their parents share in their college life-style for a few days. This year the parents had the opportunity to attend classes, chapel, men's and women's basketball games, a talent show, the Singers' musical, open house in the dorms, and a special banquet held in their honor!

◆ "How many of you are parents, have been parents, have come from parents, or plan on being parents in the future?" Greg Smith asks as he speaks to the parents during the chapel service which began Parents Weekend on Friday morning.

Senior Salutation

We welcome you seniors as we welcome kin
We don't know your future, but we know where you've been You've blessed us immensely for four years (or more)
"On with Glory" your motto, lackadaisicalness you abhor

First is Bruce Tomlin, our interests to lure
What he is thinking, we're never unsure
He'll be a great servant, 'cause he'll pay the cost
He knows what he wants - to bring hope to the lost

Young father Curt Toll is the next we approach
To some he is "Buddy," to others he's "coach."
He's studied and worked hard to get himself through,
Taking time for his wife and his twin kiddies, too

Now Jon Shoneyfelt is so quiet, reserved,
Silent servant is he, patient, never unnerved
He's thoughtful to others, kind from the start
His smile moves directly right into your heart

Kimberly Myers, our blond Stucco pres,
Likes horses and lightning, at least that's what she says
A leader on campus, so smooth things do run
She likes to be serious, adores having fun

Senior cheer leader, Crystal Moxley, has made it, you see
"Miss Enthusiasm," dean's sidekick, a real joy is she She's organized, entertained us, expressing no fear
When she speaks the word, it is--Crystal clear

Soft-spoken commuter is Timothy Moore,
Successful in ministry, and, oh, so much more
He seeks application for each thing he learns
He wants his head knowledge to match his concerns

Greek grader Rick Grover, Doc's trusty right-hand,
Is headed for grad school in old Lincoln land
Intelligent, musical, a well-rounded guy,
A fantastic preacher, his smarts he'll apply

Lord of a manor is Alan Ray Funk
It's hard to rhyme that one; 'least that's what I think
A basketball star he is raising at home,
With his lovely Dona, wherever they roam

Next, Harvey Friesen, our international guy,
(Or "Harv man" they call him, though I don't know why)
He came here to pitch for K-State, so I've heard
But now he's perfecting his pitch for the Lord

He's been hanging 'round here for many a day
A jack-of-all-trades, he can fix anything
From a broken down car to a frayed-out shoestring

Energetic Dona Elliston, our cross-cultural lass,
Owner of a thousand outfits--now what's that but class?
She's senior class pres, and, I hear, a good cook
If you guys missed out--well, it's too late to look

Michelle Cox, our pert, fair-skinned Wichita beauty,
Has blessed us with music, and not just through duty
She'll go a long way with her talent, we're sure
Keeping her life in the Lord most secure

Next on our list we greet Shadlee Colt
She's something in action; she has quite a shot
An interior designer, she'll make it through
Watch out, Harv man, her designs are on you

Young Marty Clary, great preacher to be,
Is guardian of many, a dorm dad is he
We'll miss his dry humor. The dorm he'll forsake
He's taking his wife, too. Men, give us a break!

Mature, non-traditional, Gary Brown is no fool
He's raising a family while he's in school
He's worked hard with studies; he's kept things in shape
He'll be the first there if you get in a scrape

Our basketball lady named "Sweet Debra Brown,"
Has long graced our campus with nary a frown
She's kind-hearted, friendly, a joy to be near
We know she'll be true to the things she holds dear

A basketball legend is Todd Beale, you know
Half the "twin towers," he provides quite a show
He's picked our Davinna to be his young wife
She'll help him stand tall for the rest of his life

"Bachelor till the rapture" claims Bailey, Marsha
But will she carry through? Do you think she can?
She does to be different, stands out from the crowd
She's very artistic. She'll do us up proud

Now we've Rik Alspaw, a man of good will,
Who sets an example for big brother, Phil
Youth minister, leader--and that's no surprise
This talented guy has his sights on the skies

That wraps up our seniors; commencement arrives
We feel that we've had part in building your lives
Our prayers and best wishes go with you, you know
And come back to see us the first chance you get

-Ruth Ann Warren-

Onward Christian soldier

K-State reserve fullback J.B. Sikes attends classes at Manhattan Christian College in addition to K-State courses. Sikes said he attends MCC to get "closer to God and learn more about the Bible."

"Do you know that in a race all the runners run, but only one gets the prize. Run in such a way to get the prize. Everyone who competes in the games goes into strict training. They do it to get a crown that will last forever. Therefore, I do not run like a man running aimlessly; I do not fight like a man beating the air. No, I beat my body and make it my slave so that after I have preached to others, I myself will not be disqualified for the prize."

— 1 Corinthians 9: 24-27

With the drug-related problems professional and amateur sports have experienced lately, it makes one appreciate athletes such as K-State reserve fullback J.B. Sikes.

Sikes, in his first full season as a Wildcat, is majoring in secondary education at K-State and carrying a second major in Christian education at Manhattan Christian College as well.

Though Sikes' future ambition is to be an instructor in a public high school, many people learn that he attends the Christian college across the street from K-State's campus and stereotype Sikes as a minister.

"When I first came here, I sometimes felt like I was alone in the crowd," Sikes said. "Sometimes the players would say something I didn't think was appropriate, and they would find out I'm from Manhattan Christian College, and stereotype me."

"This year, though, the team is a lot closer and it makes (my situation) a lot better. This is a really neat opportunity."

A tie-in between athletics and the Bible isn't as inconceivable as one might think.

The Corinthians were familiar with the foot races in their own Isthmian games which occurred every other year, and were second only to the Olympic Games in importance. And the apostle Paul uses the figure of boxing to represent the Christian life, according to the New International Version Study Bible.

Sikes is participating in a co-op program between K-State and Manhattan Christian College. About 80 students annually attend and earn degrees from both colleges, University registrar Don Foster said.

Willard Nelson, dean of the College of Education — which has about 12 co-op students — said the program has been "real attractive" for both colleges.

"We've had some good relationships with the Manhattan Christian College as a result of this," Nelson said. "It has attracted students to Manhattan and it is great publicity for our city."

As far as Sikes' athletic status is concerned, the program is approved by both the NCAA and the Big Eight Conference because hours at both institutions can be applied to determine full-time status and degree requirements, Foster said. Sikes, who attended Oklahoma

State University for a semester before transferring to K-State, said he decided to put his belief in God above athletics.

"I had thought about it before, but I had always put football first," Sikes said. "I just realized my relationship with God was better than that. I'm going (to MCC) because I just wanted to get closer to God and learn more about the Bible for myself."

Cogswell eager to repeat 'perfect' day at KU

Even though he signed a track letter of intent last week with archrival Kansas State, Seaman senior R.D. Cogswell will be embraced warmly Friday afternoon at the Kansas Relays when he returns to Memorial Stadium to defend his title in the high jump.

The public address announcer will sing his praises; many of the fans, coaches and competitors will know his name; all eyes will glance toward the high jump area when his turn comes up.

That is the usual welcome for defending champions, but it is particularly true for special champions such as Cogswell. Not only did he win the high jump as a junior, which allows him to return and be recognized as a champion, he eclipsed the magical 7-foot mark. Cogswell cleared 7-1 to shatter the Relays record of 6-11½ set in 1985 by Bob Sundell of Higginsville, Mo.

When Cogswell thinks back on that day, the word "perfect" comes to mind.

"I've watched the tapes about a million times," he said. "My approach was on, perfect; the weather was perfect. ..."

Cogswell admitted he had high hopes of reaching 7-0 when he went to KU, but he still amazed himself with his performance.

"I didn't have any idea I was going to jump 7-1," he recalled Monday afternoon. "Last year, I did want to jump 7-foot there. My coach (Rick Brading) thought I could do it. He cut out a big 7 out of construction paper and put it on my locker, so I saw it every day."

"It was a huge confidence builder, especially when I made it the first time I attempted it. A lot of people say, 'You made it the first time?' They can't believe it. Once you get that first time cleared, you get all of that (mental barrier) out of the way."

COGSWELL MADE IT look easy on that beautiful sun-kissed day. But he was realistic enough to know he would not jump 7-0 every time.

Still, it did set a tremendously high standard for the lean, 6-foot-2 athlete. And, although he never would come out and say it, he knew that clearing 7-0 had put him in an elite class of high jumpers. Just as batting .300 is the standard by which baseball players are measured or rushing for 1,000 yards in football or running a 4-minute mile, 7-0 is the measure of high jumpers.

The closest Cogswell comes to admitting that elite status is to say, "It definitely did (set a high standard)

It showed me that God had blessed me with the ability to high jump."

HE IS READY for the KU Relays now. His voice had an eager tone to it as he spoke Monday about the Relays. His eagerness was understandable. Not only had he just jumped 7-0, he also had signed with K-State.

The deal he has with K-State is unique. Cogswell actually will attend Manhattan Christian College, but he also will take a couple of classes at K-State and be eligible to compete athletically for the Wildcats.

"It's actually a joint scholarship with Manhattan Christian College," Cogswell explained. "They don't do that very often. I'm going to be living at Manhattan Christian College and taking a few classes at K-State, and I will compete for K-State."

"I have a lot of friends at Manhattan Christian College. My parents raised me to be a Christian all my life. I can get good grades; I'll stick to studying. It's a real good atmosphere."

The atmosphere will be different at the KU Relays, but it should be special for Cogswell. "I think it really is (going to be special)," he said. "It's going to be a good time."

Seaman high jumper R.D. Cogswell, a Kansas State signee, set a high school record at the Kansas Relays last year by clearing 7-1.

The MCC Home For Unwed Women

Jenette Rockey and Tracey Diaz have kept their Home for Unwed Women open! Coats are fast becoming a hot item with these women as they aren't exactly warm. The two have recently committed themselves to a nunnery and have vowed celibacy. Prayer is appreciated, but please send coats! — Tim Snell

Todd Beale, Scott Caldwell, and Paul Wilson recently participated in a scientific experiment for the U.S. Government. After not being allowed to shower for three days, they courageously allowed body lice to be placed in the vicinity of their armpits. As seen all experienced severe armpit itch and had to walk around with their arms crossed until their body odor killed the lice. That's dedication.

Juniors

Our MCC Junior class, though small, has "done us proud." First semester they took it upon themselves to make a T.P. trip to Nebraska Christian College. The group left Manhattan at 9 p.m. and managed to get back by 10:30 the next morning. During the get-away, however, they were apprehended by the long arm of the law and were forced to remove their handiwork from the NCC premises. They did get all four on-duty police cars on the scene and were applauded by the officers for giving "the best T.P. job they had ever seen." One even wished for his "Kodak." Second semester this astute bunch captured the pyramid championship during a basketball pep assembly with a clever one-handed approach. Keep up the good work, Juniors! We've got our eye on you!

SENIORS — On With Glory (Psalm 96:3)

◆ If I weren't at MCC this is what I'd be . . . Some famous last words from seniors Wendy Cott, Michelle Kline, Carrie Hocker and Jon Shaneyfelt.

◆ Gary Brown, Tim Hall, Rick Grover, and Genae Willich lead those in chapel with some rousing choruses.

◆ Scott Park, Curt Toll, and Alan Funk amaze the student body with the "disappearing hands" trick.

◆ Jon Shaneyfelt receives a birthday present from the Nebraska Christian College T.P. committee.

◆ "We are the world, we are the children . . ."

◆ "I look at you and sing a song about up and down . . ." (Doug Dunn and Todd Beale portray Cookie Monster and Grover.)

◆ "I love my blowfish, my blowfish loves me ..." Crystal Moxley teaches MCC students the blowfish mating call.

◆ Full of hot air, Scott Park and Kim Myers show those in chapel how talented they are.

◆ "That's good, that's right, but how do you feel?" (see page 21 for Ed Wolfe's revenge)

◆ Doug Dunn and Todd Beale tie Davinna Beale up so she can show how Houdini escaped from this difficult trick.

*"Declare his glory
among the nations,
his marvelous deeds
among all peoples."
--Psalm 96:3*

Husband and wife bell-ringing duo, Lorri and Jerry Patterson, pose before their chapel performance.

Brian Wright and Justin Moxley relax as they wait for the next ball game.

Eyerusalem Girma isn't sure if Johnson Hall is safe.

Not even snow can keep Greg and Kurt away from Johnson Hall women.

Les Dubois is innocent? (Tabatha has her doubts.)
 Andrew Nischan entertains the crowd at U.C.C. until New Creation takes the stage.

"Honey, all we need to do is sit here and wait. The boys are sure to come."
 The Freshmen class gets introduced to slab ball.

John Hekeia and Jackie Burks discuss some possibilities for Spring Break.

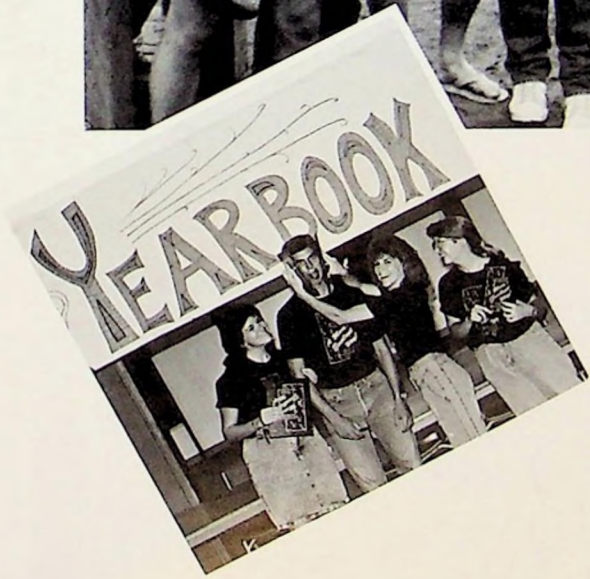

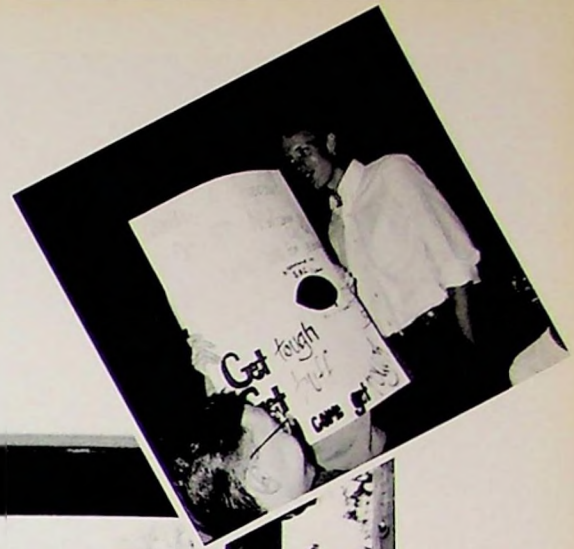

We're the guys your mother warned you about.

Shellie and Wendy can hardly wait to meet the men of MCC.

Organizations

Maragaret Moore uses her recruiting prowess to encourage prospective students.

The Admissions Team, directed by John Poulson, voluntarily helps the recruiting office of MCC. This 33-member group gives up many weekends to host prospective students that come on campus. Annual events include Fall Festival of Faith, Junior High Boot Camp, and Senior Action Weekend. The students that visit get individual attention from the "Ad-team" as well as get a feel for campus life. Along with scheduled events, the team members participate in off-campus lock-ins. These various activities and events help build relationships between MCC students and those who are contemplating a college education. Throughout the year follow-up is made on prospective students to show MCC's personal interest in the individuals. This group strives to show the purpose of Bible college and the spirit of Manhattan Christian College.

Boot-Campers are thrilled and leaders are chilled by Justin Moxley's "Pool Move" game.

The exposure that MCC receives is largely due to the work done by the recruitment office, headed by John Paulson (Director of Admissions and Recruitment). Staff and student recruiters work daily to make the college known locally as well as in various states. This dedicated crew recruits by: calling, scheduling lock-ins, organizing Apple Corps teams and events, handling large volumes of correspondence, and by planning major weekend activities for prospective students. Due to the efforts of the recruitment office, enrollment increased 10% in the fall and 12% in the spring.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student misnamed

Editor,

Page 14 of Monday's issue (Aug. 29) featured a picture of Raylene Hodge and Russel Moldovan attending the Welcome Back Dance. Unfortunately, Russel was incorrectly identified as a junior in accounting despite the fact that he witnessed the photographer, Joe Freeman, correctly record his major as Bible Ministries at Manhattan Christian College. Russel has never sought a degree from K-State.

This is the third time in the past year that a full-time MCC student has appeared in the Collegian and has been incorrectly identified as a K-State student or has had his or her major omitted from the caption.

MCC students have traditionally enjoyed our relationship with K-State. Full-time K-State students occasionally take advantage of the small class size and specialized courses offered at MCC and approximately 50 percent of MCC students are involved in the dual degree program (obtaining degrees from both institutions.) We at MCC value the use of K-State facilities such as the library and the recreational complex and enjoy participating in both intramural and varsity athletics, not to mention various social events. We appreciate the Collegian and distribute it daily.

K-State and MCC have a unique relationship which benefits students of both institutions. It would be a shame for either school to underestimate the other's value. MCC has many newsworthy events during the year and many quality students involved in both schools. MCC deserves the right to be properly recognized in this publication.

Stuco president, Kim Myers, gets ready to throw the gavel at some unknown dissenter.

Paula Ratliff, SAC representative, becomes a roving billboard to publicize the Christmas party.

Marshan Bailey proudly shows off the school sweatshirt which she designed.

Davinna Beale goes charismatic leading a chapel pep rally.

STUCO is comprised of the executive council; chairmen of the Student Spiritual Life, Student Activities, Yearbook, Food Service, and Concert committees; and representatives of the classes and student housing.

Not only is STUCO responsible for orientation, Aloha Classic, the Superbowl party, Spring Banquet, special cafeteria dinners, Parents' Weekend, and various contemporary Christian concerts; but, this year, it planned a skip trip, ice skating in Kansas City, a Christmas party, and "faculty tours." STUCO also encourage the introduction of small groups in chapel, and contributed largely to the chapel renovation.

The purpose of STUCO is to enrich the spiritual, psychological, relational, and social welfare of the student body. The group meets regularly not only to plan activities for the student body, but also to discuss ways in which life on campus can be improved for the students. It seeks to promote student leadership, involvement, and academic excellence.

◆ "Uncle Marvin says to come out and support your team!"

◆ "Kurt and Dannie, didn't your mother tell you never to climb on the counters?"

◆ The executive committee: Terri Spurgeon (treas.), Tara Warren (sec.), Troy Schroeder (v.p.), and Kim Myers (pres.).

◆ Student Spiritual Life discusses their upcoming chapel service involving small groups.

A yearbook lock-in without music is like ... Michelle Kline listens to "de island music" during a yearbook lock-in.

Kelly Hayes and Tracey Diaz take time out from dishing up food at the Mexican Pile-On (sponsored by the yearbook staff).

Les Dubois shows one of his many talents — the difficult stunt of balancing a flexible ruler on his upper lip.

Travid Strong and brother, Roger, investigate the yearbook of MCC's first yearbook signing party.

The staff who "conquered" this yearbook: Tara Warren (editor) Michelle Kline, Les Dubois, Kelly Hall, Jenette Rockey, Kelly Hayes, Tracey Diaz, and Terri Spurgeon. (Jolene Rupe advised the group, and Tim Snell served as "guest journalist.")

Braving the sub-zero temperatures of the Joliffe Arctic Circle, Jenette Rockey shows the diligence of the yearbook staff.

Taking a break at a basketball game, Terri Spurgeon and Kelley Hall depict the friendly service of the yearbook staff.

Our fearless editor, Tara Warren, always has her camera ready for action (and she shows no mercy!)

THE COLLEGE YEARS . . .

If only they could be preserved.

President Cable develops a new campaign tactic to raise school funds. (It would be an interesting approach.)

Mindy Arnold gets a high five at the spring banquet after-party for her snarfing abilities.

"Scott" does a wonderful job acting out "his" innocence.

Though the sign on Dr. Caulley's door is difficult to decipher in this picture, students during finals weeks had no trouble comprehending its message: "The next person who asks if grades are done will be cheerfully flunked."

Skip...

Skip Day, revived this year by SAC, was a big success. After using "I love Skip" pins to arouse curiosity, SAC gathered the students and faculty at an old school house near Council Grove. (No one knew when this day would arrive until the night before.) Relaxation was the theme for the day and, with the great weather, everyone did just that. It was an occasion before final classes that was welcomed whole-heartedly!

A refurbished school house provided the setting for the events of Skip Day.

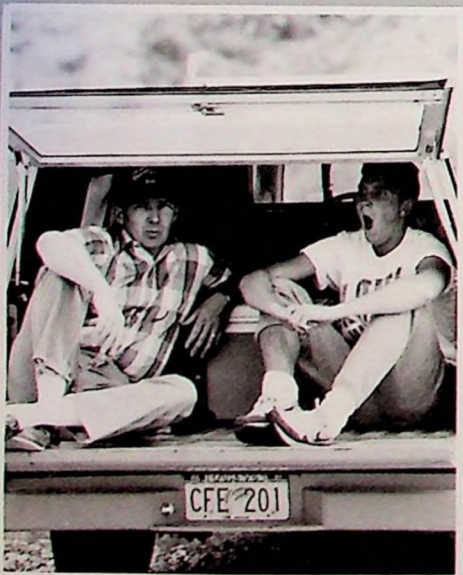

Ed Wolfe decides that true melody comes from within, and not from the voices around him.

MCC students join in some praise choruses during the chapel service.

Kim Myers demonstrates her skill as an equestrienne.

Steve Isom's truck provides the perfect place to rest and share some interesting thoughts with Kurt Goodwin.

These people had no problem substituting a game of cards for the lectures they'd planned to attend.

◆ Kelley Hall's perspective on life is a wee bit different than most students'.

◆ Brian Wright suddenly realizes the true meaning of the phrase, "Give me liberty or give me death." (Pictured with Lane Gregg)

◆ Curt Toll shows the combined affects of fatherhood and too much school.

◆ "Watch out! Chris LaDuke has a paddle!"

◆ "How dare you take my picture when I'm eating," says Scott Butler.

◆ "Let me see you do the Dr. Warren." Johnson Hall guys do the Boog-a-loo for Parent's Weekend.

◆ Darcy Ferris is proud of her "masquel"

◆ Johnson Hall ski-bunnies, Troy Clark and Dan Hall, try to keep warm during the cold lonely months.

The small family atmosphere at MCC isn't due just to size of the student body; it is also due to the many actual family relations that are here on campus (whether brother/sister, sister/sister, husband/wife, parents/children . . . the list goes on). Being away from home for the first time can be a devastating experience, but one can be greatly benefitted when he has a family member with which he can experience college life.

Unity among the campus comes from learning and growing together daily. Some of the closest friends one makes will be made in college, and one may find that his relationship with his sibling is greatly deepened. A brother might even find his sister to be his best friend. Proverbs 27:17 says, "Iron sharpens iron, so one man sharpens another." "Having my brother here has made me realize how deep his commitment to the Lord is. His daily obedience has helped me see our call to persevere more clearly. Family is truly a blessing," shared Tracey Diaz.

◆ "Scoot over Audrey . . . quit hogging the chair!" pleads Annette Hockett-Setzer.

◆ Kevin and Tracey Diaz show that you don't have to be young to enjoy Santa Claus.

◆ She's proud of her "little" brother and it shows. (Genae and Mike Willich)

◆ Dwight Bradshaw and Divi Bradshaw-Beale seek out palm trees in order to conjure up feelings of home.

◆ Time together proves to be a pleasant experience for brother and sister, Scott and Kelly Park.

◆ I've heard of "kissin' cousins," but this is ridiculous! (Todd and Kim Manes; Justin and Crystal Moxley)

W.F. Lown, President Emeritus

Ground breaking

50 YEARS

There has been much to celebrate in this 1988-1989 academic year at MCC — the increase in enrollment, the addition of competent faculty, staff, and administration members, a renewed interest in school spirit, the expansion in the discipleship program, graduation . . . the list goes on; but it is doubtful that any of these would even have the chance to be present without the efforts of one man — W.F. Lown. It is his work in the ministry that has provided the groundwork for what the college is today, so we all celebrated with him when he celebrated his fifty years in the ministry. Thirty-eight of those years were spent in ministry on this campus — twelve as a professor and twenty-six as president of the college. During that time he built and developed the music program, prevented the school from closing (due to financial collapse), helped the college earn accreditation in the American Association of Bible Colleges (It was the second of its kind in the nation to receive this honor.), promoted the construction of student housing (Johnson Hall and Waltheim), built the 3/2 cooperative program between MBC and KSU (which increased enrollment by 90% for the next year), was elected by the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce to be its first "man of the month," changed the name of the school from "Manhattan Bible College" to "Manhattan Christian College" (because many aspects of Christianity and Christian service were taught in addition to the Bible), served as president of the North American Christian Convention for a year, and increased the acreage and property value of the college. (This list is by no means exhaustive.)

Despite the odds, Lown was able to overcome terminal illness, and persevere in his desire to write. His continual joy and strong love for the Lord has greatly challenged those of MCC who have had the pleasure of knowing and working with him. It is for this reason, W.F. Lown, that we dedicate this yearbook to you. You have paved the way for our quest to become "More Than Conquerors!"

— IN THE
